Priority

1. Acknowledgment is made of applicant's claim for foreign priority based on an application filed in Europe on August 27, 2002. It is noted, however, that applicant has not filed a certified copy of the EP 02078527 application as required by 35 U.S.C. 119(b).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

4. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chromecek (US Patent No. 3,966,902).

Chromecek teaches compositions comprising an effective amount of an active ingredient such as a cosmetic agent such as an antiperspirant, a bath oil, a fragrance, sunscreen, soap, hair dye, tanning agent, etc., in a carrier comprising a polymer comprising a monomer having hydrophilic functional groups such as hydroxyl, carboxyl, or amino groups and containing aluminum, zinc, or zirconium bound in complex form (see abstract). In Example 16, Chromecek teaches the preparation of a powder comprising fragrant oil as follows: 50 ml of a solution of 2-hydroxyethyl methacrylate complex polymer prepared according to Example 6 and containing 0.385%  $\text{Al}_2\text{O}_3$  and having a solids content of 0.170 g/ml were mixed with 8.4 g of rose oil. The clear solution which was thereby formed could be deposited out in the form of a dry film which did not exhibit syneresis of the fragrant oil. The film could be used as such or after grinding could be used in the form of a powder. A long lasting fragrance releasing effect was obtained in either case. In place of the above-named polymer, copolymers prepared according to Examples 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 could be advantageously used for entrapping the rose oil as well as other combinations of perfumes, colognes, floral fragrances, odor counteractants and the like as well as flavors such as anise, peppermint, vanilla, rum and the like. (see col. 13, lines 25-44).

Chromecek also teaches that the complex polymer and active agent can be formulated as solutions, sprays, powders and the like (see col. 8, lines 18-25). Chromecek, however, fails to specifically disclose a process for preparing perfume film chips wherein the film is formed containing inclusions of perfume particles, i.e., step (a) of present claim 1.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to reasonably expect the step of adding perfume, e.g. rose oil, to the hydroxyethyl methacrylate complex polymer having  $\text{Al}_2\text{O}_3$ , as in Example 16 of Chromecek, to be equivalent to step (a) of present claim 1 because the polymer solution of Chromecek have a solids content of 0.170 g/ml in the 50 ml solution, hence during mixing, the solids would have adsorbed the perfume thus making them into particles prior to filming.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The references are considered cumulative to or less material than those discussed above.
